

PRIVATE HEALTHCARE: EXPRIVIA PRODUCES A RADIOLOGY SYSTEM ENTIRELY IN A CLOUD

The MultiMedica Group adopts the 'RIS/PACS' system for filing, sharing and viewing radiology reports at the group's healthcare facilities

16 November 2016 – Exprivia, a company listed on the Italian Stock Exchange and operating in the digital conversion of companies and the PA through Information Technology solutions, has produced the first integrated system entirely in a cloud for the collection, management and exchange of X-ray images for the MultiMedica Group.

The sixth largest private company in Italy by revenue and a medical centre of excellence on the Italian healthcare scene employing over 2,000 people in Lombardy and other regions of Italy, the MultiMedica Group has chosen the Exprivia 'RIS-PACS' integrated system, which enables X-ray images to be used at different facilities from the one where the clinical diagnostic activity was carried out and to be shared by all the group's hospital departments and outpatient departments, in full compliance with the privacy laws.

The system produced by Exprivia Healthcare IT, the company in the Exprivia group that produces solutions for the healthcare sector, enables the radiology system and the image filing and transmission system to be integrated in a cloud, thus contributing to the complete dematerialization of clinical images and ensuring a reliable retrieval system. In addition, the Exprivia software solution can receive any other type of health data, including reports, films and tracings.

As the technological infrastructure is external and not local, the MultiMedica Group has obtained significant operational savings, benefiting also from much shorter design start-up times than those necessary for a traditional installation.

«This solution – confirms Dante Altomare, the President of Exprivia Healthcare IT – is the reference model in the digitization of diagnostic imaging processes and forms the basis of the most advanced remote medicine systems offered by Exprivia».
