

ANTI-CORRUPTION CERTIFICATION AND LEGALITY RATING FOR EXPRIVIA

Exprivia becomes the third Italian company in the 'Information Technology' sector to receive anti-corruption accreditation.

Achieving a Legality Rating score of more than two stars.

3 October 2022. Exprivia – an international group specialising in Information and Communication Technology – has achieved UNI ISO 37001:2016 anti-corruption certification for all Italian offices and a Legality Rating with a score of two stars, plus-plus (★★++) out of a maximum of three stars.

ISO 37001 is the international reference standard for anti-corruption management systems, which contributes to the development of an ethical culture in businesses. Exprivia becomes the third company in Italy in the “Information Technology” sector to have achieved this certification, as represented in the Accredia (Italian Accreditation Body) Data Bank, which records more than 4,200 ISO 37001 certificates in Italy.

The standard has particular relevance for organisations operating in industries known to be more susceptible to corrupt behaviour, both active – carried out by employees, representatives or directors of the company – and passive – carried out by third parties towards employees, representatives or directors of the company.

As part of the group’s strategy of pursuing the highest ethical profile in its business development, Exprivia also obtained a Legality Rating assigned by the Antitrust Authority (AGCM), with a score of two stars, plus-plus, out of a maximum of three stars.

The legality rating is the tool by which the AGCM recognises compliance with high standards of legality and a particular level of care in the proper management of a business. Exprivia has surpassed the base level (1 star) thanks to a number of virtuous tools and initiatives that go beyond legal obligations.

“By obtaining the anti-corruption certification and legality rating,” comments Domenico Favuzzi, Exprivia’s Chairperson and CEO, “Exprivia’s willingness to operate according to principles of transparency, in accordance with the current regulatory framework, is recognised. Both awards, achieved with great results, recognise an organisational and developmental model in our group,
